Mayor Hewitt's Medical Committee, Mr. Platt said:

"No, and until I have read it I cannot discuss it. I am informed, however, that the eminent physicians who made the report do not reflect on the Commissioners.

"We shall have something to say on the subject when our report to the Legislature is ready. It is now in preparation.

"There is no question about the dreadful state of things down the bay. The Commissioners know how imadequate the arrangements there are. They have repeatedly asked the Legislature for relief, but never got it.

"An expert sanitary engineer employed by the Commissioners has made an examination of Hoffman and Swinburne islands. His report will be embodied in the one we send to Albany."

to Albany."

The Mayor's committee consisted of Drs. C. R. Agnew, E. G. Janeway, Stephen Smith, Richard H. Derby, Hermann M. Biggs, T. M. Prudden and A. Jacobi. They find that if cholera broke out in this city, an incalculable injury would be sustained by trade.

The revenue of the hotels is estimated at $100.000 a day, and this income would cause. The revenue of the note is a saturated at $100,000 a day, and this income would case the day cholera made its appearance. The time required for a journey to San Francisco is about the maximum period of cholera incubation. Thus the germs of the plague could be conveyed from New York to the most distant points of the point out some of the gravest faults in the present institutions on Hoffman and Swinbaine Islands.

The establishment is controlled by the Quarantine Commissioners, the Health Officer's powers being limited to police regulation. The buildings on Hoffman Island afford no means of separating the sexes, nor of isolating suspected groups. People able to pay for the comforts of life cannot get them, and the water suppy is insufficient, hot water being an almost unobtainable luxury. There is no proper cleansing and disinfecting plan.

The committee advise, among other things, a better sea wall at Hoffman Island, and think that the surface should be cemented and properly drained. Walls should divide the different classes of persons detained, and new buildings, fire-proof and fitth-proof, are sadly needed. Separate kitchens should be provide I and an isolated building for the disinfecting appliances.

At Swinburne Island the condition of things is also very bad. Radical changes in the hospitals are urged, or, better still, new buildings should be erected.

The committee suggest the appointment of a commission, to consist of the State Engineer, the Superintendent of Public Works, the Mayors of New York and Brooklyn, a member of the New York Health Board, the Health Officer of the Port and the Quarantine Commissioners. This body should estimate the expenses of the necessary alterations.

THE STOCK MARKET DROPPING.

Brokers Do Not Know What to Think Abou Reading-The Bears at Work.

The year opened on the Stock Exchange with an irregularly lower market, the bears making some headway in consequence of the continuance of the Reading strike, which is more complicated than ever, now that the miners have quit work. Wall street people are completely muddled over this affair, as the reports which come from the antiractic regions are lavorable or the reverse, according to the position of different people on the market.

Under the circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the bears selected Reading as a target this morning and battered the slock down from 65%—the closing figure an Friday—to 64%.

Other stocks followed suit, Union Pacific, St. Paul and Northwest being among the chief sufferers.

EIGHT INMATES OF A BAKERY NEARLY SUFFOCATED.

Fire Patrolman Overcome at First Recovers in Time to Send Out an Alarm-Escaping Gas from a Leaking Pipe the Cause of the Trouble-Men and Women Dragged from Their Beds.

Death from asphyxiation was the fate which the eight inmates of Charles Lange's bakery, at 672 Third avenue, very narrowly escaped at early dawn this morning,

The store is a large double fronted one stretching back about seventy-five feet, the rear part being divided by partitions into sleeping and living rooms for the waitresses and journeymen. The bake-house and ovens are in the basement underneath the

The original cause of the trouble was a fire which broke out in the woodshed adjacent to the bake-house at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. It reduced the woodshed to ashes, gutted the bake-house, destroyed a $600 stock of flour and broke its way through the flooring of the store.

After the firemen had extinguished the flames they found there was a great leak of gas from the pipes directly underneath the stone floor, and two men were sent by the Consolidated Gas Company to repair it. They worked for about twenty minutes and then told Mr. Lange it was all right.

The store and its contents being insured the Fire Patrol left John Arnold, of Company 3, in charge until the loss could be officially esti-

Mr. Lange told his men and girls to put things to rights and they worked all the evening. At 11 o'clock they retired to the coming. At 11 o'clock they retired to the compartments in the rear.

The waitresses were Maggie Williams aged fifteen, and Lena Goerger, aged twenty-two, and the journeymen were Otto Bernhardt, Ferdinand Andreano, Max Kuhn and Simon Schmidt. Mr. Augustus Thumm, of 121 Aboukir avenue, a brother-in-law of Mr. Lange's, on a New Year's visit, also slept in the rear.

Fire Patrolman Arnold made regular rounds through the store and the upper floors until through the store and the upper floors until 3 o'clock. There had been a strong smell of gas in the place all day, but it was thought to be the lingering trace of what had leaked before the gasmen came.

Furthermore the smell of the gas was partly disguised by the odor of charred wood from the remains of the fire.

At 3 o'clock Arnold advised the tenants of the upper floors to keep their windows open, and then he sat down by the stove. He does not seem to have exercised as much fore-thought for the women and men within a few feet of where he was stationed as for those further off. He did not open the doors and windows of the store, and the pent-up gas gradually filled the room.

It stole over the senses of the fire patrolman so that he lost consciousness and it had a still deeper effect on the occupants of the narrow deeper effect on the occupants of the narrow sleeping apartments.

At 5 o'clock Arnold awoke, staggered to his feet, and at once realized the true state of affairs. Without losing a moment he pulled open the doors leading to the yard and hall and made his way to the street, stopping on the way to drag workman Kuhn out of his Patrolman Peter Helmes, of the East Fiftyfirst street station, was fortunately within hailing distance, and he came and helped to rescue the partially asphyxiated sleepers. Word was also sent to Mr. Lange's other store at 679 Second avenue, and he ran over in his night clothes.

The first to be rescued were the girls, Maggie and Lena. They were unconscious, and it and Lena. They were unconscious, and it was at first thought they were dead. After breathing the cool air of the street for a few minutes, however, they revived.

The men were all seriously affected. Mr. Thumm especially.

He lay nearer to where the gas escaped than any of the others, and a few more minutes spent in his bed might have been fatal.

The sufferers were taken to the drug-store of Frank E. McLean and restoratives were applied. Ambulances came from Bellevue and the Presbyterian hospitals, and the doctors were able to give all needed aid on the

"THE WORLD" AHEAD OF THEM ALL,

some Suggestive Facts Shown by Caw's Ink and Pen Co.'s New-Year's Advertisement.

Caw's Ink and Pen Company, of 189 Broad way, took a novel method of introducing their goods to the New York City public on Sunday, and, in connection, made a perfect test of the value of seven of the morning papers as mediums for advertising.

They printed a special advertisement occupying a whole column and nicely illustrated, It appeared on the eleventh page of the mam moth edition of The Work on New Year's Day, and was given a conspicuous place in the other six papers. The advertisement contained this offer:

The Caw's Ink and Press Company will give a "Deshaway" double-feed fount in gold pen, the regular price of which is $4, and a quart lottle of Caw's black Fluid link, price To cen's, for the sum of $2, the only condition being that the applicant call at the store between 8 o'clock A. There were about three thousand applicants at the store opposite John street in Broadway to-day, and Manager F. C. Brown, Bookkeeper C. H. Nourse and Salesinen C. J. Feis and Louis Brown were as busy as bees in a tar-bucket waiting on the people who, formed in single file, were watted on by Mr. Brown with lightning rapidity.

Each applicant was asked what papers he saw the advertisement in or what papers he read on Sunday and a fally was kept of the replies, with a result most flattering to The

The applicants were of all ages and from every walk in life, from the banker to the bootblack, the wife of a clergyman to a schoolgirl or saleswoman.

To each was issued a card reading like this and indorsed with the name of the first paper mentioned as among their favorites:

Manager Brown said to a World reporter that he had no anxiety to sell any more of the goods at the figure offered than he was obliged to, but he wanted to advertise the goods, and know who to advertise with.

The reporter made a summary of the record at 11.30 o'clock. Among the 318 persons who trated what recovers they read any in since the strike began. He admitted that the miners struck, but stated that he had no information as to the outlook and could not tell how long it would continue.

It is conceded that the places of the miners cannot be as readily filled as those of the other employees and that the situation is not as rosy as could be wished.

An officer of the Reading Coal and Iron Company said: "If it is really so that the miners have struck, it means a panic in the coal trade.

miners have struck, it means a panic in the coal trade.

With the Schuylkill and the Lehigh miners both out a coal famine must ensue and great suffering will be the result. The blow will fall hardest upon the poor who buy their coal by the pail. People of means have their cellars stocked in anticipation of just such a result as seems now to have ensued."

When asked whether he thought that this strike would cause the Lehigh companies to grant concessions to the miners of that region, he said:

"They can't do it. They are pledged not to give to the men one cent more wages than they were receiving when they struck, and I do not see how they can get away from the stand they have taken. The men, on the other hand, are equally firm."

The same officer said that the Wyoming mines could not supply the smallest proportion of the demand from this section of the country, even if they turned their traffic from the usual channels to supply this trade.

road alone it was easy enough to procure men to fill the vacancies thus made, but the strike of so many miners will stop operations on the Reading lines almost entirely. the Reading lines almost entirely.

"I do not think the strike should tend to raise the price of coal in this city. Sixty per cent. of the coal of the Reading Company is supplied to manufacturing points along the lines of the road, and if the supplies for this market are cut off the other coal operating lines can fill the demand.

"The other lines may supply the Reading manufactories to some extent if the Reading manufactories to some extent if the R. Company will send its cars for that purpose."

The boatmen have not struck yet, and the strike of the miners has rendered such a step unnecessary. unnecessary.

The union controls one-third or more of the coal boatmen in this port. Rates have been better during the last few months than formerly, and the boatmen are loath to disturb present conditions.

At the headquarters of District 49 of the Knights of Labor it was stated that the strike had been anticipated, and was part of the programme laid out to win the strike at all hazards. The visit of Sharkey and other representatives of the Reading men to this city is now pointed to as an indication of what might be expected, and Timothy Quinn reterated to day his statement of last Friday that all the miners would certainly go out.

It was stated at the office of Austin Corbin in this city this morning that so far as the running of the Reading road was concerned he company anticipated no further trouble from strikers. In regard to the miners the latest advices received showed that the orders of the committee had been only partially obeyed by the men.

The special despatch from Mahoney City stated that the feeling against the Reading management was very biter, and that the miners were preparing for a long strike The Reading Company is prepared for the worst," said Mr. Corbin's representative this morning to an Evening World reporter,
